LEW DOCKSTADER SAVES WIFE'S BODY FROM FIRE

Lew Dockstader, famous minstrel comedian, was dealt a double blow by fate when a fire, following a few hours after his wife's death, almost destroyed his home at Long Beach, N. Y.

Dockstader was playing at B. F. Keith's this week, but was forced to abandon the engagement because of his wife's illness. She died Tuesday night of pneumonia.

The minstrel himself discovered the blaze at his home yesterday and sounded the alarm. He then aided in lowering his wife's body from a second-story window. Eugene Stevenson, Dockstader's nephew, who was ill in the house from pneumonia, was rescued.

TETTER SMITH,
Pittsburgh heiress, who eloped with a Hartford man and has returned home after overcoming the objections of her parents.

FAMILY ACCEPTS HEIRESS' HUSBAND

Reconciliation Follows After Pittsburgh Girl Elopes With Connecticut Man.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Miriam Virginia Hostetter Smith, eighteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Hostetter, heiress to the Hostetter millions and a member of the ultra-exclusive set, who eloped with and was married to Malcolm K. Smith, a young Hartford, Conn., man of moderate means, has returned to her home here with her husband. The family has become reconciled.

The bride sent first news of the wedding, telegraphing home that the nuptial knot had been tied at Toledo, Ohio.

Miss Hostetter is said to have become acquainted with young Smith, who her friends say is in ordinary financial circumstances, while attending a girls' school in Westover, Conn., a suburb of New Haven.

At the Hostetter summer home in Beverly, Mass., Miss Hostetter was visited several times by Mr. Smith, but Mr. Hostetter discouraged the friendship, it is said. Leaving Beverly late in the summer, the bride visited in New York city where, it is said, Smith again called on her. After returning to Pittsburgh she is said to have told girl friends she "was in love" with Smith, but that "father objects, so you can look for an elopement one of these fine days."

The bride is a member of one of the city's oldest and most prominent families, her mother, formerly Miss Miriam Gorde, having been a famous beauty.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 7.—Malcolm K. Smith, who is said in dispatches from Pittsburgh, Pa., to have eloped with Miss Miriam Hostetter, an heiress of that city, is registered as a student at the Rosebaum Tutoring School in Milford. He is a son of H. A. Smith, president of the Hartford (Conn.) Life Insurance Company.

GIVEN $500,000 TO QUIT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Retiring is a good business. Aaron Routman, vice president of the Barber Steamship lines, retired recently after thirty-four years service. The company gave him a present of $500,000.

GRASPS MAN'S THROAT AND CURES HICCOUGHS

Osteopath Ends Convulsions Which Have Caused Many Deaths By Simple Expedient.

Pressing his fingers against the muscles of the young man's throat for a period of six minutes, Dr. Carl Kettler, osteopathic physician, 1710 H street northwest, Tuesday cured R. B. Lake, Arlington Hotel, of an attack of hiccoughs that had persisted for two days.

Lake was seized with a spasm of hiccoughing shortly after dinner Sunday. After the attack had continued for several hours, he became alarmed and called in medical advisers. Their efforts afforded temporary relief, but the hiccoughs returned in a short time, and Lake rapidly was becoming exhausted.

The case was then called to the attention of Dr. Kettler, who afforded permanent relief by the simple expedient of pressing against nerves in the young man's neck.

"These cases of hiccoughing, which have caused death in ninety-five out of a hundred instances where relief was not obtained before the patient's vitality was exhausted, are quite simple to cure," Dr. Kettler stated today.

"Most of them are due to an inflamed condition of the stomach. This is an spasmodic contractions of the diaphragm that cause the familiar 'hiccuph.'

"The remedy consists in pressing the phrenic nerves against the lateral processes of the cervical vertebrae. This inhibits the nerve impulses that are being irritated at their ending in the diaphragm, and the 'hiccuph' ceases."

ATLANTIC FLEET SAILS FOR WINTER PRACTICE

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 8.—Composed of at least seven superdreadnoughts and accompanied by more than a score of smaller craft, the Atlantic fleet sails today from the southern drill grounds, for Guantanamo, Cuba, for annual winter maneuvers and target practice.

The seven great ships off the capes tonight are the Oklahoma, which will lead the line; the Pennsylvania, flagship of the fleet; the Arizona, Nevada, Florida, Utah and Delaware. The smaller craft will be composed of destroyers, supply ships, submarines and tugs.

Rear Admiral Henry B. Wilson, on the Pennsylvania, will command the fleet. Throughout the voyage the fleet will engage in steaming maneuvers. Other ships will join the flotilla as it proceeds. Several hundred recruits from the local training ship were transferred to the fleet ships yesterday and today and others are to be sent out early.

SUGAR POLICY of Old Dutch Market Endorsed by Federal Trade Commission

BARS COMBINED SUGAR SALES

Trade Commission to Stop in if Merchants Force Other Purchases.

Washington merchants who refuse to sell sugar unless the customer purchases other articles at the same time will in the future incur the displeasure of the Federal Trade Commission. The commission announced yesterday that it would no longer permit the sale of sugar by merchants who offer the commodity only in connection with the purchase of other articles.

Clarence R. Wilson, chairman of the fair price commission, has no jurisdiction, it is said, since his committee operates under the Department of Justice, but the Federal Trade Commission itself will pass upon such cases.

This article, published in the Washington Post the other day, shows that the Federal Trade Commission is fully in accordance with the way in which sugar was handled in our markets during the shortage. As our patrons will remember, our policy, as stated in our advertisements in the press and elsewhere, has always been
